To the Stevens Community,

As Thanksgiving approaches, I wanted to take this opportunity to express my most sincere gratitude to every member of the Stevens community for all you do each and every day to make Stevens such a special place—special in our pursuit of and progress toward excellence; special in our focus on student-centricity; special in our sense of community; and special in our shared appreciation for each other.

Stevens makes me proud every day. I am enormously proud of all that we, together, have accomplished during these past years, across all the metrics that I report to you regularly.

I am proud of our talented faculty for igniting the passion of our students and for advancing the boundaries of knowledge in domains critical to a better future. I am proud of our dedicated staff and administration for strengthening this university with a laser sharp focus on our mission. And, I am particularly proud of our students—their bright minds, their work ethic, their character and sense of responsibility, and their impact on the world as graduates. They are the future.

I wish you all a very special Thanksgiving filled with the love of family, the joy of friendship, and the peace of mind that you are making a difference.

Happy Thanksgiving!
